
Private Messaging

Posted by fishbonz - 2008/06/20 06:10

We have enabled the private messaging system for all members now. You will can read, delete, send private messages by following the link under the "User Menu" for "Private Messages".

Members will also be notified several ways of any private messages you receive:

- 1) In the logon box on the right of every page it will display whether you have a private message or not.
- 2) If you are online on the site you will recieve a pop-up notification.
- 3) If you are offline you will receive an email notification.

Members have the ability to block any users that they do not wish to receive PM's from, and don't worry if you block someone they will have no indication you blocked them.

For your added protection all private messages are also encrypted.

=====